Leonardo Balestra

The namesake of this compelling eighth edition of the Savinelli Leonardo pipe hails directly from folio 149 of the Codex Atlanticus; a design for a 120:1 scale crossbow named the Balestra Gigante. Within the intriguingly sophisticated lines of this shape one can discern the armature of the Balustrade, with the bat wings retracted at the ready. Like all Savinelli Leonardo editions, your new Balestra will arrive in a special box, accompanied by both a dedicated tamper and certificate. The Leonardo Balestra is worthy of addition to most any thoughtful collection. The Balestra is available in the smooth dark brown, brown, natural, and rusticated finishes.

2014 Collection

A Collectors series pipe will invariably feature a fine grain and arrive in a special presentation box, complete with a certificate. From 1985 until 2012, the Collector was only available in a sandblast finish. Beginning in 2013, Savinelli also made the edition available in either a smooth brown or smooth natural finish.

Marron Glace

“Marron Glace” is a delectable confection made from chestnuts, and a wonderfully apt name for this delightful new series from Savinelli.

Pianoforte

The instrument upon which the likes of Haydn, Mozart, and even a young Beethoven composed their piano masterpieces, the Pianoforte was the predecessor of the modern Grand and “Baby Grand” pianos of today, and held away from 1700, until the early romantic period. With the advent and increasingly popularity of the “historically informed performances” of the late 20th century, the pianoforte has once again taken the stage.

Pigna

From the simple, to the labor-intensive artisanal, and every point in between, if there is a limit to the number of possible rustication patterns, the industry has yet to discover it. Savinelli’s new “Pigna” (pine-cone) series boasts an adroit surface carving which falls to the far right of the artisanal scale, as well as a complete absence of stain. The Pigna series also features an eye-catching stem; one that is reminiscent of the wonderfully rich hues found in marbled jade.

88

Since the roaring 20s, “88” was more than a simple reference to the presence of a piano, but a code for “those in the know” that a low-profile, but impossibly swank establishment was nearby. From the speakeasies during prohibition, to posh, dimly lit “jazz-kissa” establishments like the “Pearl” off of the Sinjuku, wherein 300+ single malts are the norm, “88” denotes the off the beaten path hideaways which are the jewels of quality nightlife, as well as the adventurous who make a point of finding them.

Arcobaleno

Arcobaleno is Italian for Rainbow, and is one of the newest of series from Savinelli. Conceived in Italy, and named by a member of the Laudisi Distribution Group at the 2013 IPCPR in Las Vegas, the Arcobaleno was created in order to offer rusticated pipes of sophisticated shapes, as well as colorful finishes, and to do so at an affordable price.

Columbus

On August the third, 1492, two sleek ships (referred to as “caravels”) named Nina and Pinta, along with a larger carrack, the Santa Maria, set sail from Spain with an eye towards discovering an expeditious route to the East Indies. Ensnared in the largest of the vessels, the Santa Maria, the expedition leader Cristoforo Colombo never realized his dream of reaching the riches of the East Indies, but his discovery of San Salvador (the Bahamas), Cuba, and Hispaniola on his first voyage would forever change the world. The three pipes of the Columbus series are aptly named “Nina,” “Pinta” and “Santa Maria”. Each “ship” can be distinguished by finish (Nina = rusticated brown, Pinta = smooth brown, Santa Maria = smooth Bengal), as well as by the color of inlay, nestled between two gleaming bands. Dedicated both to the intrepid explorer, as well as the dreamer in all of us, a Columbus pipe will make a unique addition to most any collection.

Tandem

The Savinelli Tandem pipe, which come with both regular length and churchwarden length stems, offers a versatility that is all-to-rare in the pipe world. By day, it can be enjoyed in the “standard” configuration, when one is out and about. With the evening twilight, and hours of relaxation and leisure to follow, your Tandem pipe converts into a true churchwarden; the best possible companion to contemplative thought (not to mention a great Blue Ray). Available in four different shapes, as well as your choice of smooth or rusticated finish.

Autograph

The Autograph, prized by collectors, is a series of larger-sized handmade briars fashioned by Savinelli’s most skilled artisans. Shapes vary from wild freehands to classics.

Artisan

Hand-carved one at a time by Savinelli’s in-house artisans, from briar specially chosen for its grain quality, no two pipes of the Artisan series are truly the same. These each feature a handsome, smooth finish and medium-dark contrast stain that really allows the briar’s grain to pop, and all come included in their own presentation box.

Briar Line

The Briar Line series offers quality handmade and hand-finished Italian pipes of unique and individual design, similar to the Autograph, but in a smaller, more toteable size.

Sigla

Like the Savinelli Autograph, the Sigla series offers individually-shaped Italian briars, but does so in smaller, handier sizes, and at a much lower price point. They are featured in either of two finishes; one a finely polished, smooth light walnut, the other a rich, red-tinged rustication.

Churchwarden

The Churchwarden series, as its name suggests, offers a variety of classic Savinelli stummel designs, paired up to extra-long Churchwarden stems. The results are pipes that, while not exactly easy to tuck into a pocket, offer just about the smoothest, coolest smoke around.

Bing's Favorite

The Bing's Favorite is modeled after the pipes favored by famous crooner Bing Crosby, and are offered in rusticated or smooth. This long-stemmed, long-shanked Billiard is known to offer quite a cool smoke.

Ginger's Favorite

The Ginger's Favorite series is dedicated to famed silver-screen actress and dancer Ginger Rogers. Unlike the other Favorite lines, it features two shapes, the "104" and "626", which are presented with long, cool-smoking, horn-patterned acrylic stems, and a choice of either a dark, smoky, smooth finish or a dark walnut, contrast-stained rustication.

Giubileo d'Oro

The Giubileo d'Oro is the Savinelli pipe par excellence, presented in their most classical shapes, fashioned from the tiny percentage of briar which passes the inspection required to make this grade, and finished in either a dark, fine-textured sandblast, a smooth, lovely honey-blond contrast, or a duskier, handsomely reserved walnut contrast. As you might expect from a series consisting only of the top 0.1% of a marquee's production, the sandblast-finished pieces offer choice ring grain, while the smooth finished selections can be counted on for providing plenty of beautiful birdseye and flame.

Punto Oro

The most traditional of all the series produced by Savinelli, each boasting a time honored form which could serve as a template for their turn-of-the-century brethren. It is created from the finest Mediterranean briar, aged for three years, and boasts ninety separate crafting and inspection processes performed by some of Savinelli's most skilled artisans.

Leonardo Clavi Viola

The shank expansion of this refined bent Billiard reflects the form of the Clavi Viola itself; and it is there, fittingly enough, that we also find the sterling silver representation of this series' namesake. Though often a surprise to most, Leonardo da Vinci was the inventor of many musical instruments, from variations of war drums, to the viola organista, to the subject of folio #93 in the revered Codex Atlanticus, the Clavi Viola; a hybrid of a harpsichord and a viola. This sophisticated bent Billiard variation comes with a tamper, and is available in the smooth black, dark brown, brown, natural and rusticated finishes.

Seta

“Seta” is Italian for silk, and that’s just what the Seta series offers; a smooth-polished pipe. Well, in it’s smooth-finished version, at least. Alternatively, there’s also a lightly-rusticated version as well, left in a virgin finish, something which many pipe smokers particularly enjoy for the manner in which it will darken with age and enjoyment. The Seta concentrates on natural-style finishes, used to present flaw-free briar. The Seta include a differently colored stem namely a smart-looking tamper with a pale maple fuselage which serves as a sheathe for the threaded dottle-scraper.

Monsieur

The Monsieur line continues the concept of the colorful Tortuga series, but in a considerably more formal and dapper style. Classic Savinelli shapes are presented in either a handsomely polished, medium-contrast finish, or in an earthy sandblast, both featuring sleek, jet-black acrylic stems tastefully accented with twin nickle bands, as well as the defining piece: a matching bowl-cap, for keeping an unfinished smoke from drying out or scattering ash onto your jacket or inside your pockets.

Noce

“Noce” is Italian for “walnut,” and Savinelli presents this theme with virgin, unstained briars featuring a special rustication technique unique to this series. Along with the texture that emulates the craggy shell of a walnut, the unstained briar will darken to a deep walnut color with time and enjoyment.

Sun Set

Featuring a medium-light contrast finish, hardwood accents, and classic black stems, the Savinelli Sun Set line presents a range of signature Savinelli shapes in tasteful, attractive style. Each pipe comes complete with its own presentation box and a matching tamper designed specifically for the briars produced in this series.

Vaniglia

Like the Miele and Chocolat, Savinelli’s Vaniglia series follows a culinary theme, not just in the choice of finish style and stem, but right down to lightly flavoring the chamber with an aromatic vanilla extract, providing a little something extra to sweeten the briar’s initial break-in smokes. Once a few bowls have been enjoyed and a cake begins to form, however, the extract’s flavoring will have run its course, leaving the pipe smoking one’s favorite blends as pure as any other Savinelli.

Fuoco

Savinelli introduces the new Fuoco series, each briar presented in a box bearing Giuseppe Arcimboldo's famous Fuoco, or Fire which was created for the Hapsburgs as part of a his famous four-portrait Four Elements series. Fitting to Giuseppe Arcimboldo's style of frequently setting his subjects against dark, shadowed backgrounds, the briars of this line are offered in three dark palettes; a deep, rich, auburn-tinged, almost smoldering walnut smooth finish, an extremely dark and smoky black-over-tan smooth finish, and charming black-and-walnut rustication. All three styles come accented with bright aluminum mounts.

Petite

Petite, as the name suggests, small, light pipes; well-established, classic Savinelli shapes, altered to the kind of fine proportions more typically associated with pipes of the old French style, or smaller English “pocket pipes”. Though gracile by design, you don’t have to worry about these briars looking overly feminine or dainty - in the medium-walnut and lighter, “natural” contrast stains of the two smooth-polished versions, the aesthetic handsomely refined, while the jet-black, rusticated option makes for a pipe that combines lean, smart design with a nice bit of rugged texture.

Ontario

In an ode to the Canadian province of Ontario, Savinelli has introduced this namesake series. Fittingly enough, it consists exclusively of briars based off of the classic Canadian shape and Savinelli's own variants thereof, though they are offered in three different handsome palettes: a fine, smooth, reserved walnut contrast stain with just a touch of auburn (Bordeaux), a light, blonde contrast stain – also smooth (Natural), and a low-profile rusticated finish featuring black-over-red staining to produce a dark, but ever-so-subtly warm aesthetic (Rusticated).

One

The One series consists of “starter kits,” composed of classic Savinelli briars that each come with their own zip-up pipe bag, along with a packet of 6mm balsa filters, a pipe tool, and a bundle of pipe cleaners -- all that’s needed to get started, short of matches and tobacco. They’re also well-suited to frequent travelers, as well.

Roma Lucite

Savinelli’s already wildly popular Roma series; noted for its classic, hand friendly shapes, top notch rustication, as well as a pretty band of smooth on the rim, now offers a line for those who prefer the sturdiness and variety of colors of a Lucite bit. Whether the stem is Lucite or Vulcanite, you can never go wrong with a Roma.

Minuto

Designed to present cigarette smokers with a quick-smoking little briar that offers a purer flavor than any rolling papers can provide, the Savinelli Minuto line features convenient pocket-sized pipe shapes that nonetheless sport plenty of depth to their chambers. Their tenons are further designed to allow for the use of 6mm cigarette filters included with the kit.

Roley

The Savinelli Roley is, quite simply, the classic vest-pocket pipe. Though it may seem exotic to newcomers, this design has been around for ages, and is a textbook example of form-following-function. Indeed, the archetypal image most commonly associated with this distinctive, self-contained little smoker is that of an Eisenhower-era American engineer/patriarch keeping one in his button-down shirt's pocket.

BARASSO - ITALY

By Savinelli

Ferdinando Rossi, was one of the pioneers in bringing the production of quality, affordable briar pipes to Italy. This was at a time when Italian pipes were still largely being shaped from boxwood and olivewood with hand-tools by small families of pipemakers who would then sell them to traveling merchants. This was no easy task -- while his position as one of Northern Italy's most established wholesalers of tobacciana meant Ferdinando would have been a welcome customer to the briar-shapers of France's Saint-Claude region, at the time French pipemakers kept the details of their specialized equipment closely-guarded secrets. Nonetheless, Ferdinando persisted, and was able to acquire, here and there, bits and pieces of the (then cutting-edge) machinery used by the French workshops, and performed the necessary modifications. Thus it came to be that, in the year 1886, Fabbrica di Pipe di Radica Rossi was established. While from our perspective a pipe workshop powered and provided with light by water-wheel driven generators might seem quaint, in Ferdinando's day this was as modern and futuristic as promises of cold-fusion and private jaunts into orbit about the earth. The new enterprise had little difficulty finding handpicked skilled laborers ready and willing to sign on, and by 1892 pipes bearing the Rossi name were being exported as far away as Brazil.

The Rossi business would remain in family hands for decades thereafter, and see increasing growth and modernization until reaching their peak in 1936, with over eight-hundred employees and a production of more than fifty thousand pipes per day. Alas, following the end of WWII, there was a dramatic shift amongst smokers from affordable pipes to the disposable cigarette, and while some other Italian pipemakers were better able to adapt to changes in the market, Rossi fell into a long decline in sales, despite maintaining both good quality and a vast variety of several hundred designs.

However, although they were competitors in business, Ferdinando Rossi and Achille Savinelli were also close friends in their private lives, and so it was that generations later Savinelli not only came to acquire the Rossi name, but would see fit to restore it as one associated with quality, affordable, Italian-made smoking instruments. This is the Rossi by Savinelli of today.

Siracusa

With the Siracusa series Rossi provides Italian design, Italian briar, and Italian craftsmanship. They are fitted with vulcanite stems for a more comfortable feel when clenched in the jaw and chambers that come pre-carbed for an easier and more flavor-neutral break-in period - all at a great price, and in a warm, smooth, understated contrast finish, accented simply with a tasteful bit of polished brass.

Napoli

Sporting a dark, smoky walnut finish and glossy, jet-black acrylic stems that won't oxidize, the Rossi Napoli line offers an attractive combination of classic, understated aesthetic, Italian design, and great price. As with other Rossi series, chambers come pre-carbed for an easier and more flavor-neutral break-in period.

Napoli / 101, 111, 123, 202, 315, 320, 404, 504, 601, 606, 673, 806

Otranto

Sleek, jet-black acrylic stems and a smooth, handsome, walnut contrast finish present Rossi's Otranto line of Italian briars in an attractive, understated, traditional style - and as usual, at a great price. Chambers come pre-carbed, of course, for an easier and more flavor-neutral break-in period.

Otranto / 101, 111, 123, 202, 315, 320, 404, 504, 601, 606, 673, 806

Messina

The Rossi Messina combines fine Italian design with an extra-dark, extra-handsome walnut finish and a tasteful brass accent to offer an attractive pipe at an equally attractive price. Stems are fashioned from vulcanite, for a more comfortable feel when clenched in the jaw, and chambers come pre-carbed for an easier and more flavor-neutral break-in period.

Messina / 111, 114, 122, 207, 310, 315, 320, 606, 607, 616, 626, 670, 677

Salerno

The Salerno series from Rossi offers a combination of jet-black finish, rugged rustication, a handsome brass accent, and classic Italian design to make available a quality Italian briar at a very modest price. Stems are fashioned from vulcanite, for a more comfortable feel when clenched in the jaw, and chambers come pre-carbed for an easier and more flavor-neutral break-in period.

Salerno / 111, 114, 122, 207, 310, 320, 606, 607, 616, 626, 670, 677

Palermo

Rossi's Palermo line features a simple but attractive presentation of classic Italian designs (shaped from Italian briar, naturally), paired up to sleek black acrylic stems, pre-carbed for an easier break-in period, and finished in an attractive, dark, auburn-tinged walnut stain. And like all Rossi's offerings, the price is every bit as attractive as the pipe.

Palermo / 101, 111, 123, 202, 315, 320, 404, 504, 601, 606, 673, 806

Rubino

The Rossi Rubino offers a variety of shapes in a dark, smoky style. The matte finish provides a subtle contrast and warmth, as well as a superb smoothness in hand. The simple presentation, with the dusky briar, accented only by a nickel stem-ring allows the fine Italian shaping of these briars to speak for itself, resulting in an unpretentious look with a broad appeal, while the jet-black vulcanite stems offer a softer feel for those inclined to smoke their pipes clenched in the jaw.

Taken all together, and offered at a very modest price, the Rubino has all the makings of a series that can be appreciated by both experienced pipe aficionados looking for an addition to their collection that will serve as a trusty smoker that won't need coddling and by those new to the pipe as an affordable and tasteful way to start out.

The Rubino is offered in batches of one-dozen each, with the option of either a mix of both bent and straight designs, or, alternatively, a mix of bent shapes only.

Kiribi, The origins of Kiribi lay in the traditional Japanese practice of casting sparks upon a beloved traveler's back, in order to impart fortune and ward off evil, blessing them on their journey. The practice hearkens back to the famous 8th century legend of Prince Yamatotakeru, and the aunt who gifted him the firestone and striker which saved his life along perilous travels.

KIRIBI

In time, the same simple tool kit that was used to perform the original Kiribi came to be used by the countryfolk of Japan to light their pipes; and thus the inspiration for the Kiribi line. All acts in life involve an important first step, and enjoying a bowl from your favorite pipe exceptionally so. Every spark, whether it is struck for a pipe or a cigar, or a chance-met stranger's cigarette, sets us upon a little journey of our own; and a little extra good fortune can't hurt.

The Kiribi lighter combines smart, retro styling with modern improvements in engineering. Innovations such as a dual-flame design, which provides the benefit of a wider, more gentle light for your pipe and a single tank construction of extraordinary fuel capacity. Much as we demand of all things we rely upon every day, that which become dearest to us, entirely hand assembled in Japan, the Kiribi construction is meticulous. You can feel it in your hand; a gravitas created by the nickel, steel, and brass serving in all the essential parts. All, save one: the confident snap of the flame-cap is provided by yet another innovation, a spring made of a special polymer more resistant to fatigue even than steel. Our choice of accessory items speak volumes to people we encounter every day. They quietly reflect a sense of our tastes, discernment and outlook, and do so in a manner without ostentation or braggadocio. Light a lady's cigarette upon a chance encounter, with a Kiribi. You will be speaking with confidence... without saying a word.

Mikazuki

Celebrated in Haiku by the likes of Yosa Buson and Basho, Mikazuki is Japanese for “waxing crescent moon”, and that ephemeral beauty is elegantly captured within chrome finish contours of the base and ignition platform. The dapper exterior design hails from the apex of the Art Deco movement, the roaring 20s, as does the signature Mikazuki arches.

Under all of this retro style, you will find manifold modern innovations: a single tank construction which boasts an enormous fuel capacity, as well as a cutting-edge, dual flame design which boasts the binary benefits of covering a wider surface, while being gentler to your pipe.

Ohgi

Ohgi, along with sensu, are terms for a folding fan, but the namesake of this arrestingly retro lighter is considered more historical and formal. Far more than a simple means of moving air, an ohgi in the hand is a metaphorical spotlight upon the person who holds it.

Innovations such as dual flame design, which boasts the binary benefits of covering a wider surface, while being gentler to your pipe, a single tank construction of grand capacity, and a hinge spring made of a special polymer that is far more resistant to fatigue than steel.

Kabuto

100% hand assembled in Japan and nickel, steel, and brass serving all essential parts (save one to be mentioned later), the construction of your new Kiribi Kabuto is impeccable, and like its namesake, durable enough to be passed on for generations. Innovations such as a capacious, single-tank fuel reservoir, a new binary flame design, which provides the dual benefits of covering the wider surface area of your pipe, while being gentler to the same. The hinge spring made of a special polymer; a material which is over 200% more resistant to fatigue than steel.

Crooner First the back story. We were contacted a number of years ago by a gentleman who claimed to be a friend of famed pipe smoker Bing Crosby who said he had the recipe for Bing's private blend. After hearing the recipe it was decided it would make a good blend whether the story was true or not. In 2006 or '07 (our memories aren't what they were) the IPCPR Convention was held in Las Vegas. Sure enough, every restaurant or hotel we went into confirmed that indeed our friend and the Crooner were inseparable whenever Bing was in Vegas! Specially cut cube Burley and deer tongue. G. L. Pease / The Heirloom Collection

Westminster The very essence of the traditional English mixture; rich, elegant, refined and exquisitely balanced. New World Red Virginias are enhanced with a gentle caress of bright leaf, then lavishly seasoned with rich Oriental tobaccos and generous measures of noble Cyprus mountain Latakia. Westminster is a satisfying blend, presenting layers of flavor to delight the senses and develop in the bowl. A perfect everyday English mixture. Full-bodied.

Gaslight Gaslight is a rich Latakia mixture, structured with layers of mature red Virginias and spiced with Orientals. It’s pressed and aged in cakes, then cut into one ounce bars of about 1” x 1” x 2”. I opted for the bars rather than “brownies” like JackKnife and Triple Play, as it makes it a bit easier to slice; Latakia can be tough stuff. The result is deep, satisfying, dynamic, and very slow-burning. Be careful not to pack the pipe too tightly, or it’ll be hard to keep lit and will last forever. It develops beautifully in the bowl from first puff to ash.

Redwood A mixture for Virginia lovers! We start with naturally sweet red and stoved red Virginia tobaccos, add enough perique to provide some body and spice things up a bit, and finish the blend with a pinch of unflavored black toasted Cavendish. The color is reminiscent of the hues of a redwood forest; the aroma is as pleasing as a walk in the woods after a gentle spring rain.
